State Highway Department To Pay All The Expense

And An Experimental Dirt Road Will Be Built

Circuit Court Renders A Decision for Myers

Other Items Of Interest From The Court House

Through the efforts of the Knox county commissioners and County Auditor Irvin Young, the state highway department has consented to do some experimental work on the road bending from the Coshocton road to the Ohio State Sanatorium. The read will be constructed of dirt and will be along experimental lines and he state highway department will cadeavor to show that good results on be obtained from dirt roads.

The State highway department has instructed County Surveyor Wolfe to survey the road at once and it is the expectation to commence the work within a short time. The work will be done by contract and the state of Ohio will pay all the expenses.

The state board of administration, having under its jurisdiction the Ohio State Sanatorium, first called the at tention of the county commissioners to the fact that the road was almost impassable in the winter time and the early spring and suggested that the matter be taken up with the state highway department. Accordingly the commissioners and County Auditor Young made a trip to Columbus and after a conference the state highway department announced that an experimental road would be con-

It is the expectation that the road will be the very best of its kind in every particular.

UNKNOWN SHIP PASSED WRECK

Ignored Titanic's Frantic Appeals For Assistance.

FOURTH OFFICER TESTIFIES

Boxhall Appears Before Senate Committee and Tells of Mysterious Actions of Steamer Whose Lights Were Plainly Visible From Bridge of Liner When Crash Comes-Says Captain Smith Was on Duty at Time of Collision.

Washington, April 23.- That a vessel was within sight of the Titanic when it came into fatal collision with the leeberg, was the feature of the senate committee's hearing into the cause of the disaster. This unidentified vessel was headed toward the Titanic. So close was she that her lights were easily discernthle from the Titanic's bridge. Yet this mysterious ship failed to respond to the burning rockets that were sent up for more than an hour as signals of distress, or to the urgent electric flashes which, in the Morse code, spelled the words "come at once, we are sinking.

In the opinion of some of the Titanic's officers who stood on the bridge on that fatal night of April 14, this vessel, within sight of the Titanic, acknowledged the signals but sailed away unheeding. This startling information was imparted to the committee by J. G. Boxhall, former fourth officer of the Titanic, who also gave impressive details of what occurred on the bridge of the Titanic just preceding and following the collision with the iceberg. According to this officer, Captain Smith himself was on the bridge when the big liner plunged into the great mass of ice, but conditions were so that it was impossible to see the berg even after the ship had come into contact with it.

Account Is Impressive.

Besides Officer Boxhall's dramatic story, the senate committee heard an impressive account through Vice President Franklin of the White Star line, of the uncertainty and fears that attended the efforts of the officials of the White Star line to ascertain just what had happened to the great Titanic. All the messages that flashed from the White Star line officers in those hours of uncertainty were introduced in evidence, and also the wireless dispatches that came back bearing only the most sourt has had under advisement for messages which passed between P. The senate committee's room in the senate office building was jammed with such a crowd at the hearing that it was impossible almost for the members of the committee to hear the testimony of the witnesses. The committee has accordingly decided to exclude the public from the hearings in the future, except those directly interested, including representatives of the press.

FIND WIDENER'S BODY

Wireless Reports Names of Many Recovered From Atlantie. New York, April 23.-The White

Star line heard from the two Commercial Cable company boats which they sent out after the Mackay-Bennett cable steamer, which has been searching for bodies. The steamship company got a cable telling that 27 hodies of those recovered have been identified, but the trouble in transmitting accurate dispatches by wireess was so great that a large number of the names received do not tally with the names of the lost. Here is the list sent, with what may and which either had been identified or are in such condition that it is probable they can be identified when brought to Halifax. Orders were sent to the Mackay-Bennett by the White Star line to steam for Halifax with the bodies that have been recovered, and the ship was notified at the same time that the Western Union cable ship Minia would be dispatched to the scene to relieve her.

The Minia sailed early this morn ing, and with favorable weather she will reach the scene of the disaster or the point where the bodies have been reported or found in 48 or 50 hours, and the Mackay-Bennett will require the same time to return. She will accordingly be in Halifax tomorrow evening, when the relieving ship is about commencing her work off the Grand Banks. All the information at the disposal of the Mackay-Bennett will be conveyed by wireless to the Minia.

She replied by cable that she would sail on the Titanic.

TOOK WORKMENS' TIP

Belfast Man Avoided Titanic Because Told Boat Was Unsafe.

Elyria, O., April 23.-The workmen who built the Titanic did not share the faith of Captain Smith in the unsinkableness of the boat. Instead, they believed that the material put into it was far too light for its enor mous size, and that It could not sur vive a rough passage.

This was the statement made in Elyria by Thomas Butler of Belfast Ireland, who has just arrived to visit his son, Gunning Butler. The senior Butler is in the steamship business at Belfast, where the Titanic was constructed. He planned to come over on the Titanic, but after talking with workmen who helped build the ship, changed his mind and booked passage on the Cedric.
